Challenges to Preventing Investment Fraud

Psychological Barriers

- ▶ Illusion of invulnerability (I can't be taken.)
- ▶ Reactance (You're not the boss of me.)
- ▶ Threats to self-esteem (I am not stupid.)
- ▶ Too much information (I can't remember what you taught me.)

Systemic Barriers

- ▶ Scams everywhere (how do you warn against so many different frauds?)
- ▶ Scale (how do you reach a critical mass of consumers?)
- ▶ Proving a negative (how do you show when something doesn't happen?)
- ▶ Persistence (if you can show a preventative effect, does it last?)

How Big is the Problem?

Recent Major U.S. Cases:

- ▶ Nevin Shapiro – $880 million Ponzi scheme
- ▶ K. Wayne McLeod – $34 million Ponzi scheme
- ▶ Bernard Madoff – $50 billion Ponzi scheme
- ▶ Stanford Investments – $8 billion Ponzi scheme
- ▶ Greater Ministries – $500 million in losses – 18,000 victims
- ▶ Hundreds of cases with losses in the $10-$50 million range

Your Investment Fraud Risk Meter Results

LOW MEDIUM HIGH

The Risk Meter compares your responses to the findings of two research studies—a 2007 Senior Fraud Risk Survey by the FINRA Investor Education Foundation and a 2006 Investor Fraud Study by the Consumer Fraud Research Group—that examined how known investment fraud victims differ from non-victims.

Based on your responses, you are in the "red zone" when it comes to investment fraud risk. That means you share many of the traits and behaviors of known investment fraud victims, including the following:

- ❑ neglecting to Check Out Brokers: You are not alone if you've never checked out your investment professional with a regulator—about 80% of investors haven't! But smarter investors take time to check whether their broker, adviser or other investment professional is properly licensed and to verify his or her disciplinary history. To find out about a financial professional's background, use FINRA's BrokerCheck.
- ❑ neglecting to Check Out Investments: All investing involves some degree of risk, but some investments are riskier than others. Because most frauds involve investments in companies that have not registered their securities with the Securities and Exchange Commission, a smart first step is to ask whether an investment you're considering is registered—and if not, why not.

Impact: Field Testing a Curriculum

- ▶ Recruit investors to attend one of two workshops.
- ▶ Deliver new curriculum to the first group, then put both groups in a hypothetical “fraud situation”
- ▶ Measure difference in resistance to fraud appeal.
